

Warehouse G on Dessauer Ufer in Hamburg-Veddel, undated

Frihedsmuseet, Copenhagen, FHM-24027

Zuzana Beckmannová on a building site next to railway tracks in the Rothenburgsort-Tiefstack area of Hamburg, February or March 1945

Photo: Gert Beschütz (Courtesy of Karl-Heinz Schultz)

Cover photograph: Prisoners of the Neuengamme concentration camp preparing for the demolition of a ruined building at Gerhofstraße in Hamburg-Neustadt, October 24, 1944.

Photo: Hugo Schmidt-Luchs, ullstein bild, Berlin, Bild850222-40A

A City and its Concentration Camp

Prisoners of the Neuengamme concentration camp in wartime Hamburg 1943–1945

An exhibition by the Neuengamme Concentration Camp Memorial supported by the Hamburg Parliament.

The Neuengamme concentration camp network was the largest concentration camp in north-west Germany, holding over 100,000 prisoners in the main camp and over 85 satellite camps for men and women. Today, the memorial is a place of remembrance and learning that preserves the memory of the victims of SS terror.

More information:

KZ-Gedenkstätte Neuengamme /
Neuengamme Concentration Camp Memorial
Jean-Dolidier-Weg 75
21039 Hamburg
Tel.: +49(40) 428131-500
E-Mail: neuengamme@bkm.hamburg.de
www.kz-gedenkstaette-neuengamme.de

Visit our exhibition online:

www.kz-gedenkstaette-neuengamme.de/en/news/

Hamburg, January 2019

KZ-Gedenkstätte
Neuengamme

Ausstellungen
Begegnungen
Studienzentrum

A City and its Concentration Camp

Prisoners of the Neuengamme concentration camp in wartime Hamburg 1943–1945

With financial support from the Federal Commissioner for Culture and the Media based on a decision by the German Bundestag

The City of Hamburg played a crucial part in the establishment of the Neuengamme concentration camp. After the heavy Allied air-raids in the summer of 1943, hundreds of concentration camp prisoners were forced to retrieve dead bodies and clear rubble in the city.

Institutions and companies asked the SS to supply them with more and more prisoners for construction of temporary housing, production of building material and weapons as well as shipyard work. From 1944, 15 Neuengamme satellite camps emerged in the city. The inhabitants of Hamburg encountered concentration camp prisoners every day in the street, on their way to work and in companies.

The aim of this exhibition is to remind visitors of the use of prisoner labor in the city, its initiators and aftereffects.

Police reservists keeping watch over concentration camp prisoners clearing rubble, ca. 1944.

Photo: Andreas Werner (Police), KRONOS Media GmbH, collection Uwe Petersen, HH-WW2-Rolle 48_20140624_0010

Exhibition chapters

- 1 A City and its Concentration Camp.
Prisoners of the Neuengamme concentration camp in wartime Hamburg 1943–1945
- 2 Wittmoor and Fuhlsbüttel:
Hamburg's first concentration camps
- 3 Hamburg's interest in a large concentration camp
- 4 Hamburg leaders and the Neuengamme concentration camp
- 5 What did the inhabitants of Hamburg know about the Neuengamme concentration camp?
- 6 Use of forced labor in Hamburg
- 7 Arms production in the Neuengamme concentration camp
- 8 The destruction of Hamburg through Allied air raids
- 9 Use of prisoner labor following Operation Gomorrah
- 10 The 2nd SS Construction Brigade in Hammerbrook
- 11 Retrieving dead bodies
- 12 Prisoners of the Neuengamme concentration camp bury air-raid victims
- 13 Work in the rubble
- 14 "State of emergency"
- 15 In constant mortal danger: Bomb disposal details
- 16 "It is unbelievable that we survived it all"
- 17 Satellite camps for clearing rubble after air raids
- 18 Initiatives regarding the expansion of prisoner labor in Hamburg
- 19 Competition for prisoner labor
- 20 The first female Neuengamme prisoners
- 21 Living conditions in the Neuengamme satellite camps
- 22 Concentration camp prisoners as victims of air raids
- 23 "It was a strange feeling to leave Auschwitz."
- 24 "The number of dead is enormous."
- 25 Satellite camps for construction of temporary housing
- 26 Hard labor for the bombed-out citizens of Hamburg
- 27 Pregnancies and births in the Hamburg satellite camps
- 28 Construction companies profiting from prisoner labor
- 29 Satellite camps in the Hamburg armaments industry
- 30 Everyday life of prisoners working in armaments production
- 31 Companies' scope of action: the Drägerwerk AG
- 32 Self-preservation and resistance
- 33 Satellite camps at Hamburg shipyards
- 34 Company owners prepare satellite camps at shipyards
- 35 Everyday life of prisoners working at shipyards
- 36 Disease and death in the Hamburg satellite camps
- 37 Inhabitants of Hamburg as guards
- 38 Concentration camp prisoners in the public eye in Hamburg
- 39 Digging anti-tank trenches for the "Final Battle"
- 40 The Evacuation of the Hamburg satellite camps
- 41 Concentration camp prisoners after liberation
- 42 Concentration camp guards after the war
- 43 Company policies – to deny or to accept responsibility?
- 44 "It weighs on Hamburg's conscience"
- 45 Commemoration of former satellite camps in Hamburg
- 46 "Memories keep coming back"
- 47 "You have to rise up together"
- 48 Contributors